

USE YOUR VOICE TO NARRATE PLANET EARTH III - MACAQUES

Ever wondered what it would be like to narrate some of the incredible stories from Planet Earth III? We've added two of our favourite Planet Earth III video clips to the BBC Children in Need website or click here to watch and we'd love you to Become a Voice for Nature by narrating these yourselves!

We've removed Sir David Attenborough's famous voice from these clips, so when you press play use the subtitles and full script below to help you to re-voice these Planet Earth III stories.

Either have a go at narrating the whole clip yourself at home, or share out the lines below amongst your class and all take turns to Become a Voice for Nature!

BECOME A VOICE FOR NATURE

- 1 These long-tailed macaques live in Bali.
- 2 Every morning, the troop heads for a building in the centre of their territory.
- 3 Tourists come here every day in crowds.
- 4 So the temple grounds are full of opportunities, if you know where to look.
- 5 There is a constant supply of hats and sunglasses.
- 6 But this harvest is not for eating... it's for bargaining.
- 7 Seems like a fair trade.
- 8 But there are greater rewards to be had... for those who know how to get them.
- 9 And this old male appears to be doing... very well.
- 10 He, and the other elders in this troop have both experience and knowledge.
- 11 They've been working the temple for over ten years and now concentrate on the big stuff.
- 12 No one wants to walk home with just one shoe.
- 13 And these old boys can't wait to get their hands on the latest tech.
- 14 The older males understand something the youngsters have yet to learn.
- 15 The art of the deal.
- 16 A banana? How dare you?
- 17 A bar of chocolate? That's better.
- 18 The real skill is in the negotiations.
- 19 The macaques are playing us at our own game.
- 20 They demand whatever they want.
