BBC Children in Need is a UK-only charity

True

False

That's right! For over 30 years, we've helped children across the UK who need it most.
2 points

This is actually true! We've always focused our efforts right here in the UK.
1 point

BBC Children in Need's big day is Red Nose Day

True

False

Uh oh, wrong! Our big day is in November. Comic Relief's Red Nose Day is in March.
1 point

Yes, it's false! Red Nose Day is for Comic Relief, and we're different charities. We work locally, while Comic Relief works in the UK and internationally.
2 points

Presenters and celebrities are paid for working with BBC Children in Need

True

False

Yes it's false - all the big names that work with us understand the importance of what we do and take part voluntarily.
2 points

Well done! There are BBC Children in Need workers based in every region, using local knowledge to decide where we can make the biggest difference.
2 points

Nope, it's true! We know how important it is that people based locally to you choose how money is spent in your area.
1 point

True

False

The people who decide where our donations are spent live right across the UK

It's not true! We're a charity, so every celebrity gives their time for free.
1 point

BBC Children in Need is just a one-off day in November

True

False

Yes, it's false! We accept donations and work hard all year round to make sure your fundraising reaches children who need our support.
2 points

It's not true! While our Night of TV is the most famous day in our calendar, we are busy putting your money to work all year round.
1 point

BBC Children in Need only helps children with their physical wellbeing

True

False

Oh dear, that's wrong! While many of our funded projects help support children who have health conditions, we do so much more besides.
1 point

It is false! We work to make a difference to children and young people living with mental health challenges, poverty, social inequality, family-related issues and more!
2 points

BBC Children in Need only support primary school aged children

True

False

Whoops - it's not true! Over 50% of our funding supports secondary aged young people!
1 point

Good job, it is false! We fund work that supports children and young people from the ages of 0-18.
